

31 Days of Advocacy

---

What is Advocacy?

"Advocacy" can mean many things, but in general, it refers to action. Advocacy simply involves speaking and acting on behalf of yourself or others.

Take the next 30 days to grow as an advocate. Each day, there is an advocacy task with resources to guide you.

Learn the History of the Children's Mental Health Movement

Day 1

To be an effective advocate, you need to know the history, build on its strength, and have a goal for the future.

- Read: Why Wear Green?
  - Read: The History of the National Federation of Families
  - Read: Timeline of the Family Movement in Children's Behavioral Health

It's About Acceptance, Not Awareness

Words matter. Acceptance is active. Awareness is passive. It's time to move beyond awareness and into acceptance.

Day 2

Learn why this is an important message to use in your advocacy. Commit to using acceptance language.

- Visit: Acceptance vs. Awareness Pinterest board
  - Read: Why the "A" Now Stands for Acceptance
  - Review: The Meaning and Importance of the Shift From Awareness to Acceptance infographic
  - Review: Mental Health Acceptance: Because Awareness is Not Enough infographic

Bringing Mental Health Into the Conversation

Day 3

Dialogue is where change begins. Mental health needs to be part of everyday conversation because taking care of your mental health is just as important as taking care of your physical health.

Learn more about how to talk about mental health.

- Visit: Talking Mental Health Pinterest board

Have a Conversation About Mental Health

Day 4

Find someone in your life and practice what you learned yesterday by having a conversation about mental health.

31 Days of Advocacy

---

Personal Impact is a Powerful Part of Advocacy

Think about how mental illness has impacted your life. We need more people with first-hand experience talking about mental health challenges. Just by sharing your journey, you can help others see that there is a light at the end of the tunnel, and it is not an oncoming, out-of-control train.

Day 5

Hearing about the darkest moments of your life can help people who are struggling know they can make it through. It can also help break societal stereotypes about mental health.

- Read: Your Story: A Powerful Advocacy Tool (NAMI Texas)
  - Visit: How to Tell Your Story Pinterest board
  - Watch: Telling Your Story With a Purpose

Develop Your Elevator Pitch

Sometimes you have just a few minutes to engage someone about mental health and its importance. Having what is called an “elevator pitch” will help you make the most of the opportunities you have to share why children’s mental health is so important.

Day 6

Remember to include acceptance in your pitch. You will want to practice your pitch aloud.

- Visit: Elevator Pitches Pinterest board
  - Watch: Advocacy Elevator Pitch Example
  - Write your pitch down!

Practice That Pitch

Wear a green ribbon today and share your elevator pitch with anyone who asks about it.

Day 7

- Read: Why Wear Green?
  - Visit: Elevator Pitches Pinterest board
  - Read: Your Story: A Powerful Advocacy Tool (NAMI Texas)

Say “Thank You!”

Find out if your mayor and governor signed a proclamation for Children’s Mental Health Acceptance Week. Did your city light up something green? If so, send an email thanking them for their support for children’s mental health issues. Be sure to add something about why it is important to you.

Day 10

This is also an opportunity to talk about the importance of acceptance. A personal thank you is very powerful. For those in elected office, the number of people they hear from on an issue marks its importance.

Celebrate Children’s Mental Health Acceptance Day!

Day 11

Spread the word today on all your social media about Children’s Mental Health Acceptance Day. Don’t limit yourself to your friends. Post comments and links about acceptance on community Facebook pages as well.

What is Mental Health Parity?

The 2008 Federal Parity Law requires insurers to cover illnesses of the brain, such as depression or addiction, no more restrictively than illnesses of the body, such as diabetes or cancer. Unfortunately, many insurers are still not following the law.

Day 12

Learn About Mental Health Parity

- Watch: The System We Need: Parity
- Review: What is Mental Health Parity infographic
- Visit: Parity Pinterest board
- Review: Don’t Deny Me infographic
- Review: Don’t Be Denied infographic

Take a Deeper Dive Into Parity

Have you, or has someone you know, experienced a parity violation? Learn more about violations, how to appeal a denial, and who can help you in your state. What are the federal and state parity laws that affect you?

Day 13

- Visit Parity Track to utilize the following resources:

  - Advocacy Toolkit
    - Learn advocacy basics
    - Get tools and resources to build your advocacy skills
    - Find tips for writing and speaking as an advocate

Dig Deeper Into Advocacy

Now that you know more about what advocacy is and what it means to be an advocate, it's time to dig a little deeper. Explore one or more advocacy tools. Determine how you can be most effective in sharing your voice.

Day 16

Visit the Advocacy Toolkit | National Federation of Families and click Help Me Learn to Advocate.

Identify How You'll Keep Up-to-Date on Advocacy Issues

There is so much happening that it's hard to keep up. Identify a couple sources you will follow to get your advocacy news.

Day 17

- Follow: National Federation of Families Legislative and Advocacy Facebook page
  - Read and Watch: Where to Find Legislative and Advocacy Updates Nationally
  - Read and Watch: Where to Find Legislative and Advocacy Updates in Your State

31 Days of Advocacy

---

Create Your Personal Advocacy List

Advocacy needs to occur at national, state, and local levels. Advocacy with the right person at the right level is how you can be most effective. You need to know your representatives at every level, how to reach them, and what might help connect you to them.

- Create a list of all your representatives and how to reach them.
- Keeping it on your computer allows you to easily add links to reach them.
- Later in your advocacy journey, keep track of when and why you contacted them.

Day 18

Where to find your representatives:

- Search: Who Represents Me? An Elected Officials Lookup
When you enter your address, this site will give you your representatives' contact information, website, email, and links to their social media accounts.
- Locate your mayor by name, city, or population size.
- Find your county executive (the head of the executive branch of government in your county) by map search or your ZIP Code.

Learn About Your LOCAL Legislators

Look at your Personal Advocacy List.

Who is your mayor, county commissioner, school board representative, etc.?

- Visit their websites to learn more about each of them.
- Make notes of anything related to mental health that they mention.
- Look for ways to connect with them on a personal, common ground level.
- Sign up for any newsletters they offer.

Day 19

Where to find your representatives:

- Search: Who Represents Me? Elected Officials Lookup
When you enter your address, this site will give you your representatives' contact information, website, email, and links to their social media accounts.
- Locate your mayor by name, city, or population size.

Find your county executive (the head of the executive branch of government in your county) by map search or your ZIP Code.

31 Days of Advocacy

Learn About Your STATE Representation

Day 20

Time to find your state representatives. Look at your Personal Advocacy List. At the state level, you'll want to learn about your governor, state senator, and state representative.

- Visit your state representative's, state senator's, and governor's websites.
- Make notes of anything related to mental health they mention.
- Look for ways you can connect with them on a personal, common ground level.
- Sign up for any newsletters they offer.

Where to find your representatives:

- Search: Who Represents Me? Elected Officials Lookup

Learn About Your NATIONAL Representation

Day 21

Now it's time to look at your national representatives—to learn about your senators and congressional representatives. Get that Personal Advocacy List ready.

- Visit each of your senators' websites.
- Visit the website of your congressional representative.
- Be sure to make note of any committees on which they serve.
- Make notes of anything related to mental health they mention.
- Look for ways to make a personal connection with them.
- Sign up for any newsletters they offer.

Where to find your representatives:

- Search: Who Represents Me? Elected Officials Lookup

Follow Those Legislators!

Day 22

Social media is a tool legislators use. You can too! Following them allows you to see what they are posting and tells you what is important to them. Use social media to communicate with your legislators. Follow them on Facebook, Twitter, etc. Comment on their posts and tag them in your posts about issues. Always be polite.

- Grab that Personal Advocacy List.
- Follow all your representatives on social media.

Where to find your representatives' social media accounts:

Search: Who Represents Me? Elected Officials Lookup

- Read: Writing Your Legislator: A Guide

Get Active with Local Legislators

You can make a significant difference in just 15 minutes! Pick a local legislator—county mayor, school board representative, etc.—and share your opinions about the major policy issues affecting you and your community.

Day 24

- Email and ask which bills they are supporting to promote children’s mental health.
- If they have done something positive lately, mention that.
- If you can, mention something you learned about them from their website or Facebook. Try to find a personal connection.
- Be sure to record your contact with them on your Personal Advocacy List.

Get Active with Your Governor

Check out your governor’s website and social media pages. Find an issue they support that you agree on and reach out. Start that relationship on a positive note.

Day 25

- Email and ask which bills they are supporting to promote children’s mental health.
- If you can, mention something you learned about them from their website or Facebook. Try to find a personal connection.
- Be sure to record your contact with them on your Personal Advocacy List.

Get Active with State Legislators

You can make a significant difference in just 15 minutes! Email your state elected officials—state senators and state representatives—and share your opinions about the major policy issues affecting you and your community.

Day 26

- Email and ask which bills they are supporting to promote children’s mental health.
  - Mention something you learned about them from their website or Facebook.
  - Be sure to record your contact with them on your Personal Advocacy List.

31 Days of Advocacy

---

Get Active with National Legislators

Nearly all congressional staffers say letters will influence an undecided lawmaker, whether sent via mail (90%) or email (88%).

Day 27

- Email or write to your congressperson and senator.
  - Ask which bills they are supporting to promote mental health.
  - Mention something you learned about them from their website or Facebook page.
  - Be sure to note your contact with them on your Personal Advocacy List.

Learn About Committees

Learn how to watch committees, who serves on them, and why they are important. Get your Personal Advocacy List, find a committee on which your legislator serves, and watch a session. Follow up by emailing your legislator to let them know you watched the meeting.

Day 28

Did you know that most committees have Facebook pages you can follow?

- Visit the Navigating Committees section of the National tab on NFF's Legislative and Advocacy pages, where you can view committee schedules, committee reports, and floor calendars.

What is Legislative Advocacy?

Legislative advocacy is educating ourselves about certain issues to influence the introduction, enactment, or modification of legislation. Take today to learn more about legislative advocacy.

Day 29

- Watch: Advocacy 101
  - Read: How to Be an Effective Advocate \(aacap.org\)

Commit to Being a Mental Health Advocate Year-Round

You can effect change in your local community by being an advocate for mental health. Policy change is one way you can make a difference. This month you've taken the first steps.

Day 30

- Be Aware. Knowing your legislators and how to connect with them is the first step to being a mental health advocate.
  - Be Present. Follow your legislators' social media, read their newsletters, and attend their town halls.
  - Stay Connected. Staying connected with legislators and proposed legislation is the final step of being a mental health advocate.

31 Days of Advocacy

---

Maintain Your Commitment

Commit to staying on top of mental health issues and advocacy opportunities happening nationally and in your state.

Day 31

- Follow: National Federation of Families Legislation and Advocacy Facebook page
Repost from the page throughout this year on topics and issues that are important to you.
- Visit: Legislation to Know
- Connect with those doing advocacy work in your community.
- Stay connected to your elected officials.
- It's important that they hear the positives of what they are doing from you as well.
